GTM Architects, Inc.

George Myers has always been an independent-minded guy. Confident in his balance of architectural creativity – he holds Bachelor and Master of Architecture degrees from the University of Maryland – and pragmatic understanding of construction, he established his own architectural firm just three short years after college. His entrepreneurial spirit paid off, and Bethesda, MD-based GTM Architects, Inc. has grown to include sixty staff members and seven partners. “Everyone is an important part of the team,” Myers believes, adding that the varied professional experiences and depth of abilities run deep, infusing GTM’s work with innovation and integrity. Myers explains that since 1989, “We have grown and diversified over the years while holding one thing constant – our commitment to excellence in both service and design.”

Guided by a design philosophy that emphasizes client relations, values design, and is dedicated to enhancing the environment, GTM architects are passionate and committed to their work. Every project includes a clearly articulated vision shared by architect and client. Project goals are established and met,
